

SWIMMING POOL

After the end of the third part of the workshop, we took the bus to go to the open-air swimming pool in Stefanshöhe with the other young people from Wangen and Ebensee. The three swimming pools, one for children, one for diving from diving boards of different heights and one with a whirlpool and slides in the middle, are surrounded by an immense green area and catering facilities.

Many of us went to change in the changing rooms to try out the slides and trampolines, while others decided to simply sit on the deckchairs to soak up some sun.

When it was time for lunch, we headed to the kiosks there to order some food, eat together and talk to the other guys, discovering the differences between one city and another.

After lunch, we found a volleyball and a court with a net and decided to organise a friendly game to spend more time together.

Unfortunately, our time in the pool was short because after about two hours we had to return to the centre to attend the official ceremony.

In spite of the short time, however, the day was a lot of fun because we had the opportunity to relax a bit and get to know the guys from Wangen and Ebensee better outside the workshop activities.
